Christmas! (Christmas tree and Santa!)

flobo hard disk repair crackThe Commission is warning users of security codes for credit and debit cards that do not meet PCI DSS requirements that they will be liable for any damage that occurs if they fall into the wrong hands. The commission also suggests those who do receive these codes to place them in a safe place and be sure that the only person who has access to them is someone from your organization that they know well and trust. Additionally, all individuals who have this responsibility to determine the risk of releasing security codes that have a risk of fraud, identity theft, and/or other damage to the credit or debit card holder that can occur from the wrong release of the security code, must first validate that the request from another person is genuine and safe, and that the risk is low. The commission also explains that they will not be held responsible if another organization releases a security code that is known to be false or fraudulently obtained.
